

Enthusiastic

Whether it's working on a school project or cheering on my favorite team, people always say, I do it with gusto! I never take the simple approach to life. I always show passion in what I do. In school, for a problem I can't get a grip on I always try different solutions to figure out the problem. If I can't figure it out I'm at tutorial the next day asking the teacher how to solve the math problem. My other huge passion is hockey; The Mighty Ducks are my team. I always show a bold attitude at every game. Sometimes, it causes me to get yelled at by the referee or getting peanuts thrown on me. I am known around the arena for being the kid in the "yellow jersey" at the Mighty Ducks games. I'm not afraid to ask the difficult questions or speaking what is on my mind. Everyday, of my life I try and make it be the best day of my life. People always tell me how excited I get for the littlest things, but I live life to the fullest. There are no second chances in life so you have to find some way stand out from the rest. I am never satisfied with being second; I give one hundred and ten percent.

Ambitious

People tell me I'm a forty year old guy stuck in a sixteen year old body. My dream in life is to some day take over my parents business or buy a sports team. I was born into the business world and taught you always try and make the best product you can. The main reason I came to Edison High School is because I wanted to join Cibacs and learn more about the business world. I set high goals for myself and try my very best to succeed. Anything that I do, I do my best because I put my name on it. I always look at the future and decided if the choice I'm making today is the proper choice for tomorrow. I always want to succeed in what I do. Part of being ambitious is planning goals for yourself, and I have. I never miss any homework assignments and I always do the best that I can. I also know if I don't succeed today I won't succeed tomorrow. That means everyday you have to work your hardest. You only have one life to live, so live it to the fullest!

Cheerful

Life needs happy people and I always try and bring a positive attitude. You can't hold a grudge against someone because it brings your motivation level down. I always try and make up with the person that I got into an argument with. Everyday, I try and do my best to make people have a winning attitude. My mom taught me that. If you make people around you happy then they perform to the level you expect them to. My friends tell me all the time that I make them laugh and I can feel comfortable around them. It also makes them happy too. If you aren't happy you're not enjoying life. I definitely bring a winning attitude to everything I do. Smiling and joking around with my friends and family is one part of life I can't live without. Being unhappy can make you sick and down, but laughing can make you feel well. Having a witty attitude helps me feel great about myself and makes me comfortable around people. In the working world you have to have a positive attitude, and I'm sure that being cheerful can give me a huge boost with my peers and with the consumers.
