

Every year the CIBACS program sets aside a special night for the graduating students involved in this program. This special night is a memorable and exciting banquet for the parents, teachers and students to enjoy. After an intense interview for this particular position, I received the honor of taking on the task to coordinate this exciting event.

Although this event appears to be glamorous and fun, the steps involved in creating this banquet involve long hours of research, comparing and contrasting prices, and organizing. This year I plan to amaze everyone through all of my accomplishments from the banquet, as well as all the hard work I put into organizing this event. I plan to go above and beyond all of the expectations that await this special night. I will put more effort into the banquet than just food, a video and the handing out of awards. After brainstorming, I found many creative and fresh ideas. I will take a survey for the type of food that will be served at the banquet, the teachers and parents who deserve special awards, and the theme for the event. This will make the night more personal and special. I also plan to contact Mrs. Steadman, the CIBACS sophomore teacher who moved away, and invite her to this event with an intention of surprising the senior class. I also plan to create a video consisting of all the presentations of the 2001 class since our freshman year.

This event is full of so many new things that I have never been exposed to. I will learn so much information such as being in charge of an entire committee, handling a huge amount of expenses, creating successful surveys, finding a place for a huge number of people for an evening, creating a memorable video, formally inviting a person thousands of miles away to an event without telling any of my classmates, and all the other tasks that I will learn along the process of this banquet.
